About New Golden Mile, Estepona Taking its name from Marbella's Golden Mile, the New Golden Mile refers to the areas beachside of the N-340 road and immediately next to the road on a mountainside position between the Casasola area to just after the Kempinski Hotel, all of them within the municipality of Estepona. The term has also been expanded to include other areas and sometimes residential areas that lie just after Guadalmina on the way to Estepona are referred to as being within the New Golden Mile. Service-wise, the New Golden Mile offers pretty much all your basic services, from cafes/restaurants and supermarkets to sporting facilities and banking. This of course, is a great advantage as it is almost guaranteed you will not have to drive into Marbella or Estepona towns for your shopping. Additionally to the Villa Padierna, luxury beachside and beachfront hotels such as the Kempinski Hotel, Las Dunas or the Senator Banus cater to an increasing demand for quality holiday accommodation as well as offer the catering services and standards required by many residents and visitors to the area. Half way between Marbella's cosmopolitan hustle and bustle and Estepona's Andalusian town lifestyle, the New Golden Mile is a perfect blend of both worlds.
