Reggello (Firenze) - Reggello - Donnini, typical villa "Leopoldina" surrounded by olive groves and vineyards. The property was built around the mid-nineteenth century and renovated in 2008.

The main building is divided into three apartments, featuring large rooms and typical details of the houses on the Tuscan countryside: terracotta floors, stony stairs and sills, vaulted ceilings or exposed beams.

The villa also has the typical turret ("Colombaia"), from which you can enjoy a suggestive view of the Sammezzano Castle and the surrounding hills.

Attached to the house there is a typical barn of about 75 square meters and an additional building of 20 square meters, both to be restored.

The land owned is approximately 29,000 square meters, of which 17,000 are olive groves, in an area renowned for the production of excellent "Olio extra-vergine".

The property is also ideal for gathering multiple families or for those who want to combine the main house with a characteristic accommodation facility.
